Meet and Discover - Spring 1997

PUBLISHED QUARTERLY BY THE CALIFORNIA ARBORETUM FOUNDATION

A non-profit corporation benefiting THE ARBORETUM of Los Angeles County

Fifty years ago a group of visionary citizens was determined to start an arboretum for the quickly growing metropolis known as Los Angeles. After all, any area wishing to be perceived as "civilized" and culturally rich needed to have an arboretum like other major cities across the nation. Led by Dr. Samuel Ayres, a noted dermatologist and active member of the Southern California Horticultural Society, this group eagerly looked for land appropriate for such an undertaking. Having visited Hawaii several times, Dr. Ayres noted sadly that the Los Angeles semi-arid climate lacked the lush colors which the tropical habitat of Hawaii produces. His particular dream, therefore, was that a new arboretum be founded with the primary purpose to introduce color into the Southern California landscape. In 1947, after successful negotiation with Harry Chandler, the County Board of Supervisors, and the State of California, a tract of 111 acres destined for residential development was purchased from the former Lucky Baldwin ranch for the express purpose of creating an arboretum.

In 1948, the California Arboretum Foundation was incorporated as a not-for-profit in order to plan and manage the acreage owned jointly by the State and County. Its original Board of Trustees included Dr. Ayres and others dedicated to the mission of establishing an arboretum as a cultural institution emphasizing research, plant introductions, plant collection displays, education, and botanical pursuits. Fifty years later, we owe a huge debt of gratitude to the hard benefit The Arboretum over the years.

During your next visit, please look for our newly erected Thank You Honor Board which salutes those whose significant annual support makes possible important aspects of Foundation work.

Anniversaries give us a chance to reflect on what has gone before, to be grateful for what we currently have, and also to look ahead at future possibilities. The future holds infinite possibilities at The Arboretum, and we are eager to bring them into reality for new generations of visitors. A Garden Guardian program has been launched so that opportunities for commitment will be made available to more people and organizations. For us to continue the dream of our founders, new support resources are important to identify and connect with a tangible list of needs. Therefore, a "wish list" is inserted for your consideration and suggestions. One or two might just pique your fancy, or that of someone you know!

We hope you will feel a certain pride in your Foundation membership during this Biennium Anniversary period and appreciate that your own support makes a difference. You are in good company, not only with the founders of the institution but with all those who have followed over the years in the belief that The Arboretum is a special oasis, a precious resource in our urban surroundings for people and for plants. * working dreamers who composed the first Board of Trustees and set about the tremendous task of creating The Arboretum of Los Angeles County. Dr. Ayres' wish for color was satisfied by the prodigious activity of Arboretum plant introductions which are responsible for many of the flowering trees which today are commonplace in the Southern California landscape.

In order to express our thanks fully, we are planning several events and projects to celebrate our Golden Anniversary and the many contributions which the Foundation and its members have made to

Alice Frost Kennedy - A tribute

*Francis Ching, Director,
THE ARBORETUM 1970-1990*

Since the 1960's, Alice Frost Kennedy was a volunteer and a board member and officer of arboreta and botanic gardens in Southern California.

She was a friend to everyone who was supportive or would lend an ear to the needs of gardens. An able leader and advocate and a "doer", she firmly believed that the "Arboretum Is For People."

She set forth to lead a drive to increase the membership of the California Arboretum Foundation, from a static 700 in 1970, to more than 3,000 in 1973. During this time, Alice, with the support of Los Voluntarios and the Foundation, was also able to steadily increase the number of active volunteers. They became involved in virtually every possible function of The Arboretum...including both Baldwin Bonanza and Queen Anne Frolic. These were major fund-raisers and community events which opened many new doors to The Arboretum. These were pioneering events for fund-raising activities to support a wave of new programs that were yet to be determined.

For thirty years, Alice set high standards for herself and others who shared in her integrity and tenacity. Because of her love for plants and gardens, both the Foundation and The Arboretum have grown and gained many new friends, and the community has prospered from the programs and activities of The Arboretum.

As CAF President, Alice presided over festivities of the 25th Anniversary of The Arboretum in 1973. In 1998, The Arboretum celebrates its 50th Anniversary. I am certain that her presence will be strongly felt. She has left a great legacy to all. ☺

Baldwin Bonanza Weekend

CELEBRATE! CELEBRATE! 50 YEARS OF PLANTS AND PEOPLE

Do you want to be an Angel?

The Biennium Celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the California Arboretum Foundation (CAF) was launched on February 20, with the unveiling of the Thank You Honor Board, located in the Gift Shop Courtyard, and the beginning of the Garden Guardians Campaign, an opportunity for corporate, small businesses and individuals to spread their wings in support of THE ARBORETUM of Los Angeles County.

Select your Guardianship area from the enclosed Wish List. An expanded version of the Wish List is available in the Foundation office.

Annual sponsorships are acknowledged in a variety of ways, tailored to each Guardianship level.

All guardianships, except for endowments and benches, require annual renewals for continuation, or end one year from the anniversary of the gift.

Donors are also encouraged to take partial guardianships under their wings by funding a portion, rather than the whole cost of a project.

Please feel free to call Beth Monaghan at the Foundation office (818) 447-8207, to discuss how to spread your wings in support of The Arboretum through the Garden Guardianship Campaign. ☺

Library Services Provide Education and Outreach

It was a very good year.

1950 proved to be an exhilarating year for The Arboretum staff as interest in the institution grew and areas of research were initiated. W. Quinn Buck came aboard bringing his extensive collection of Hemerocallis. After this, test planting of Eucalyptus and Acacia was established on the grounds, and cooperative research projects were undertaken. The first cooperative project was with the United States Department of Agriculture for testing of potential cortisone-producing plants. Other agencies included the United States Soil Conservation Service, the University of Southern California School of Pharmacy and the California Highway Department for freeway planting research. Earlier in the year, education and outreach were identified as an important focus of The Arboretum. A library committee, to serve the library that opened in 1948, was appointed by the California Arboretum Foundation (CAF) with an initial concentration on subtropical horticulture.

Library services became more and more important to Arboretum staff members during this period. Frans Verdoon, the first Arboretum Director, had procured the first 1,000 volumes to stock the shelves in 1948. By 1951 the library, in addition to other books and periodicals, boasted 46 volumes of photocopies of all the literature on begonias published throughout the world, donated by author Helen Krauss. The collection consisted of the entire body of work that served as research for her book, Begonias for American Homes and Gardens.

Today, the library is seen as an incredible resource by members of the general public. Primarily horticultural and botanic, the collection also includes smaller selections on related sciences, such as natural history and California history. Home gardeners looking for cultivation information, writers researching specific plants and ornamental horticulture and landscape architecture students are just a few examples of people who use the library as a primary resource.

The instant a visitor walks through the doors of the library, there is that glorious feeling, known only to committed library users, of being confronted with almost unlimited knowledge spread on tables and resting in the stacks. Presiding over this seemingly bottomless store of information is Plant Science Librarian, Joan DeFato.

For more than 20 years she has kept up with the fast mounting flow of information using every possible resource to service Arboretum staff and visitors.

DeFato keeps up with her profession and her constituents by serving on the Board of Directors of the Pacific Horticultural Foundation, publisher of Pacific Horticulture. She is a Past President of the Council on Botanical and Horticultural Libraries, and is on the board, and membership secretary, for the Southern California Horticultural Society. She is also on the board, and Membership Director, of the Southern California Chapter of Special Libraries Association. The Library is of significant benefit to those in the community with or without a special interest in botany and horticulture," said CAF Board President Donald R. Deise. "The Arboretum is fortunate in the fact that we have so much talent in our professional staff, and Joan DeFato is a prime example of this talent."

Beyond the call of duty is the way Joan DeFato works. If there is a question she will probably have an answer, and if she doesn't, she will help you find it.

1997 is a very good year at The Arboretum. Make it the year to enjoy all of the benefits of this great institution by using it as a primary learning opportunity in your life.

"We are the children of our landscape; it dictates behavior and even thought in the measure to which we are responsive to it."

Lawrence Durrell *

The library is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. To contact Joan DeFato call 818/821-3213. Or e-mail at Callefarb@aol.com

Environmental Education Fair

The 17th Annual Environmental Education Fair is held at The Arboretum on Saturday, March 15, from 9 am to 4 pm. It is sponsored by state environmental education grant funds in conjunction with Conservation Week and draws more than 3,000 visitors annually.

The day includes an extensive program beginning with an academic competition.

More than 60 educational and environmental exhibitors will entertain and inform visitors of all ages with hands-on natural science projects.

Presentation of the Green City Grant special recognition awards funded by the Oak Tree Foundation and sponsored by the California Arboretum Foundation will be given for planting trees in schools and public areas.

The Environmental Education Fair provides a rare opportunity to share a day of outdoor beauty at The Arboretum while becoming environmentally aware. Don't miss it! (Arboretum fees apply - reference calendar) *

Field Leaders — The Ultimate Experience

Members of Los Vols undertake many jobs.

Introducing children, who are in the primary grades, to the Arboretum by teaching environmental awareness and California history, is one of the most important functions of Los Vols. Field Leader is the title given to those undertaking the responsibility of these popular tours.

Teachers, from public and private schools alike, work with the scheduling committee of Los Vols to arrange times and make assignments for Field Leaders to lead the 60-90 minute tours.

The 30 Field Leaders are well prepared to meet the challenge of a group of highly charged young people, having completed a vigorous comprehensive training course in addition to the six week orientation program required of all volunteers. Professional members of The Arboretum staff provide training in such areas as basic botany, uses of plants by man, early California Native Americans, Arboretum birds, early California history relating to the historic buildings on The Arboretum site, and more.

Chairing the Field Leaders this year are Jeannine and Otto Kiertzner, who along with 22 year veteran Siby Minton, agree that being with children is what draws them to the job. "It's the kids, they really light a fire," said Minton. The Kiertzners note that the children are "awe-struck" by The Arboretum and say they want to live in the Queen Anne Cottage!

On a recent tour, one small boy from the inner-city kept looking for the graves! It seems that the only tree-filled area he had ever seen was a cemetery. This look at The Arboretum, through the wide eyes of a child, give Field Leaders an even greater appreciation of the place they love.

"I like the tour," wrote a youngster in one of hundreds of letters lavishly illustrated in living crayon, "especially the peacocks. I think those peacocks were pretty with their tails out." Of the Koi fish one child wrote, "son bonitos los pescados de colores tambien."

"I learned that plants and people need each other."

Another child observed that the "cotton was the coolest because I didn't know where cotton came from, but the strawberries were cool too because I didn't know that strawberries came from flowers."

But perhaps this touching and gratifying comment, from a satisfied tour-goer, sums it all up: "I learned that plants and people need each other."

Fame has its critics. I blush to find that some of my readers think I have quite gone around the bend since my recognition factor has climbed so quickly. One must look at these things squarely, so I took a chance and talked to Martha S., whose wisdom and prosperity far exceedeth mine. "Mrs. Peacock," she said, (this is when I wish I had a first name) "one does have to be careful. I myself am a simple person, just look at my hair! But I have critics who also believe I have just created something out of nothing. That I am a mere flash packet!" Suffice to say, this conversation helped me not, but I do know where my roots are...well, at least since I left India. Love of The Arboretum far exceeds my love of self, and you my readers know of what I speak. It is Spring and time to Meet and Discover the roots of our existence and the opportunities to learn and extend ourselves. As the oldest living resident at The Arboretum I remember when

The Arboretum was not The Arboretum. So much history is here. So many stories, told and not told. It is time now to reflect. Not live in the past, but learn from it and take care to make the present and future of this site live up to the dreams of all those who were here before we came upon the scene. We are at the beginning of a Biennium celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the California Arboretum Foundation. February, 1948-1998. Let's do something to really celebrate! (I'll kick off my part by getting those peachicks home from boarding school to serve on some committees, buying tons of plants at Baldwin Bonanza the first weekend in May, and I'll send Martha S. the name of my feather stylist)
